PINE KNOT

PURPOSE

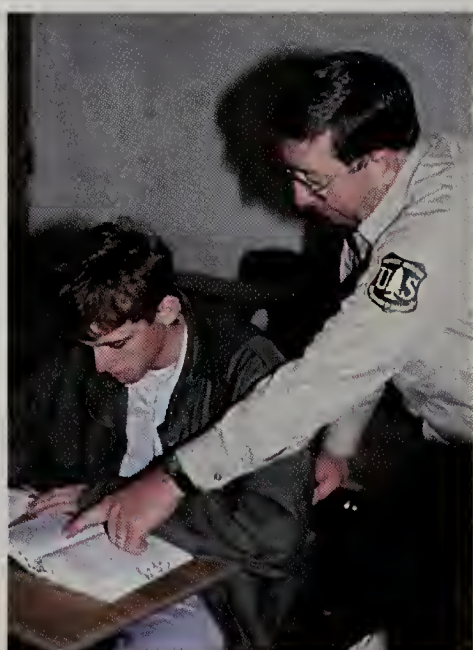

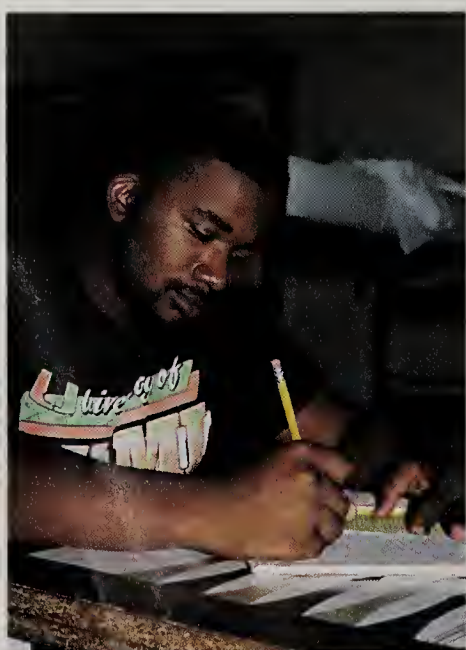

The Pine Knot Job Corps Center offers qualified young men an opportunity to gain job skills. Plans call for the Center to become coeducational in the near future. If you qualify, the Center will help you improve your ability to get a job and advance in your career. The Center is organized to prepare you for the working world. You learn at your own pace while you attend classes and receive training in your selected vocation.

THE CENTER

The Pine Knot Job Corps Center is a Civilian Conservation Center in the Daniel Boone National Forest, 110 miles south of Lexington. The Center is located on U.S. Highway 27, near the Kentucky-Tennessee state line. The Big South Fork National River and Recreation Area is west and south of the Center.

The Center can accommodate 224 male residents. You will live in one of four modern dormitory complexes. Each has a lounge area for visiting, reading, watching television and social activities. Laundry facilities are available on the Center.

Most of the buildings on the Center have been built by students as part of their learning process. You will be pleased with the high quality of workmanship that has gone into the structures.
